Concern over unhealthy food environments in recreation and sport facilities has prompted provincial governments to introduce voluntary nutrition guidelines for the recreation sector. However, implementation of these guidelines is low. This presentation will describe the role of provincial nutrition guidelines in supporting healthier food environments in recreation and sport facilities.

Dr. Dana Olstad is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Community Health Sciences at the University of Calgary and a Registered Dietitian. Her research focuses on the impact of policy on socioeconomic inequities in dietary behaviours and health.

Objectives:
1. The current state of food environments in recreation and sport facilities in Canada
2. Which provinces have nutrition guidelines for the recreation sector, and what those guidelines entail
3. The role of provincial nutrition guidelines in enhancing facility capacity to promote and support healthier food environments in recreation and sport facilities
